The Kreeger Museum Reopens

Washington, DC – The Kreeger Museum has reopened to the public. The safety and wellbeing of our visitors and staff are of utmost importance. As when the indoor spaces reopened in summer 2020, the museum has added safety measures to ensure a safe visitor experience. Please refer to the Museum’s website for specific procedures.

The Kreeger Museum is also pleased to present an updated schedule of special exhibitions.

TRACES

Guest curated by Sarah Tanguy
Through May 29, 2021

TRACES explores how the past evokes shifting memories while suggesting new and present narratives with works by Billy Friebele, Roxana Alger Geffen, Rania Hassan, Sebastian Martorana, Katherine Tzu-Lan Mann, Antonio McAfee, Brandon Morse, and Johab Silva. Inspired by personal and cultural history, the natural and built environments, and the human condition, the artists offer an impassioned take on the issues of the day and suggest possible futures to come.

The exhibition encompasses works in a wide variety of media, including painting, photography, mixed media, sculpture, sound, and video, and includes several site-responsive installations. The artists engage with their materials, mining the many meanings of “trace,” as noun and verb, and exploring themes of displacement, connectivity, and transformation. Highlights include a multi-story, site-responsive suspended installation by Rania Hassan, a kinetic, solar-powered, outdoor sculpture by Billy Friebele, and a 43-foot cut paper mural by Katherine Tzu-Lan Mann.

Objects from the Studio: The Sculptor’s Process

Curated by Danielle O’Steen, Ph.D.
June 1 – August 31, 2021

This exhibition brings together maquettes, sketches, and other objects from sculptors’ studios to explore how outdoor sculptures are made, focusing on works from The Kreeger Museum’s Sculpture Garden. The show includes objects not previously shared with the public that provide insight into the artistic process, from preliminary drawings to handcrafted models. Artists include Kendall Buster, Richard Deutsch, John L. Dreyfuss, Carol Brown Goldberg, Dalya Luttwak, and Foon Sham.
Lou Stovall: On Inventions and Color
Curated by Danielle O'Steen, Ph.D.
January 20 – April 16, 2022

Lou Stovall: On Inventions and Color is a survey of works by Lou Stovall, the master printmaker who has transformed the field of printmaking in Washington, DC since the 1960s. The exhibition includes works from across Stovall’s career, giving insight into the artist’s innovative approach to screenprinting and his decades-long study of color.

Stovall has been based in Washington since 1962, when he arrived as an undergraduate to study at Howard University. Born in Athens, GA and raised in Springfield, MA, Stovall found his home in DC and his devotion to printmaking, which continues to this day. In 1968, he founded Workshop, Inc., a screenprinting studio aimed to reach new audiences, connect with political movements, and create new opportunities for a diverse group of artists, such as Elizabeth Catlett, Gene Davis, Sam Gilliam, Lois Mailou Jones, Jacob Lawrence, and Robert Mangold. These important collaborations will be represented in the show, which features works by Gilliam, Jones, and Lawrence, among others. A catalogue will be published in conjunction with the exhibition.

Of the Land: Lou Stovall and the Poetry of Seasons
Guest curated by Will Stovall
January 20–April 16, 2022

Organized to accompany Lou Stovall: On Inventions and Color, this exhibition examines the master printmaker’s 1974 series Of the Land, a collection of interconnected poems, drawings, and prints inspired by the natural world. Guest curated by Will Stovall, the artist’s son and a painter, the show will coincide with a new publication on the series by Georgetown University Press.
